HOUSE CHILD LABOR BILL AMENDED BY COMMITTEE

Changes It in Important Respects
Before Voting to Report Measure to the Senate.

The House child labor bill was amended in important respects before the Senate interstate commerce committee yesterday voted to report the measure to the Senate. As passed by the House, the bill would prohibit the employment of children by manufacturers of goods shipped in interstate commerce. The Senate committee amended the bill so as to prohibit the interstate shipment of goods in the manufacture of which children have been employed. This amendment, the committee holds, makes an attack upon the constitutionality of the measure less probable.

Another amendment to the bill makes a producer, manufacturer or dealer liable to prosecution if he ships in interstate commerce a product from a plant where children have been employed thirty days prior to such shipment. The House bill had made this period sixty days, but had established a rule of evidence in connection therewith, which was eliminated by the committee. The vote in the committee in favor of reporting the bill was 6 to 5. The bill will be reported by Senator Robinson of Arkansas as soon as opportunity permits.

HOUSE MADE OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Organizations With 12,641 Total Membership Hold Meetings in Buildings.

NATURALIZATION BUREAU
PLANS NEW TEXT BOOK

Board of Education Grants Use of Building for Conference on the Subject.

Organizations with a total membership of 12,641 are holding meetings in public schools of the District, according to a statement made by Henry P. Blair, president of the board of education, at a meeting of the board yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Blair read a compilation of statistics with a view of showing the attitude of the board with regard to the use of school buildings by various civic and community organizations for meeting purposes.

He stated that forty-eight parent-teachers' associations of white persons are meeting in the schools, and thirty-five like associations of colored persons. Nine white citizens' associations are meeting in school buildings and seven colored associations. Fifty-four civic and community associations of white persons are meeting in the schools and four like associations of colored persons.

The associations of white persons using the schools for meeting purposes have a total membership of 9,286, while the colored associations have a membership of 3,355, Mr. Blair said.

Use Sundays as Issue.

These figures were announced by Mr. Blair following the reading of letters from various organizations regarding the stand the board of education has taken with regard to its refusal to permit the use of the Grover Cleveland School for Sunday afternoon meetings. Letters commending the board for its action were received from the Washington district, Methodist Episcopal church, United Brethren in Christ, International Bazaar, and the Alliance for Civic Righteousness.

Letters favoring the Johnson community forum bill were read from the Franklin-Thomson School Association, the People's Church and the Hewitt Bible study class.

The board of education granted the special use of public schools as follows:

To Players' Group of the Drama League, use of the assembly hall of McKinley Manual Training School, for the presentation of several plays.

To the Carbery School Alumni Association, use of the assembly hall of Eastern High School April 28.

To Washington College of Law, use of the assembly hall of Business High School for its final debate May 6.

To Bureau of Naturalization, Department of Labor, use of either the Wilson Normal School or the McKinley Manual Training School July 9 and 10 for a convention of public school principals and superintendents of education for several hundred cities of the country.

For Text Book on Citizenship.

Raymond F. Crist of the bureau of naturalization appeared before the board and told of plans which have been made for a great gathering of public school officials for the purpose of formulating a text book on American citizenship for use by foreigners wishing to become citizens and by native-born citizens. More than 600 cities have promised to have representatives at the convention, said Mr. Crist, adding that the federal bureau of education is working with the bureau of naturalization in the plan. The former bureau is to print and distribute the proposed text book. The president and several members of the cabinet have promised to address the gathering, according to Mr. Crist.

Mrs. Lyman E. Keeler, president of the Parents' League, reported on the activities of that organization during the present school term. The league has been conducting night classes at the Wilson Normal School in parliamentary law, singing, domestic science, Spanish, gymnastics, sewing, rhythm, library reference and dietetics. There has been an average attendance on Monday evenings of 400 persons, Mrs. Keeler said. The largest attendance has been at the Spanish classes which have averaged 140.

Superintendent Is Upheld.

Ernest L. Thurston, superintendent of schools, reported to the board that March 21 he suspended C. E. Francis and G. H. Murray, teachers at the Armstrong Manual Training School, who engaged in an altercation following a dispute about school work. On the motion of John B. Lerner, the board approved the action of Mr. Thurston, and agreed that the two teachers should be severely reprimanded. They are to be reinstated today, but are to lose their pay for the days they have been under suspension.

Announcement was made that the Washington College of Law has continued for another year its scholarship to a Business High School student.

The board voted to refuse the Congressional Union Women's Club permission to circulate in the public schools pledges promising participation in a "choir" is to sing at the farwell ceremony to be held at the Union station Sunday afternoon when the suffrage leader, Jessie James, is to leave for Europe.

Announcement was made that Stephen E. Kramer, assistant superintendent of schools, yesterday opened bids for High School Cadet uniforms, six firms having submitted proposals.

COAST GUARD OFFICERS EAGER TO BE AVIATORS

Heads of Service Gratiified by the Number of Applications Received.

One in every twelve officers of the coast guard of the eligible rank of second and third lieutenants, line and engineer, has been appointed to study aviation or has applied for the chance. These applications come from men detailed to coast guard cutters along the Atlantic coast from Florida to Maine, and even to Halifax, N. S., and one from the great lakes.

This is indicative of the wave of enthusiasm that has swept over the coast guard in favor of the aerial feet for the coast guard proposed in the bill introduced in Congress by Representative Andrew J. Montague.

More Applications Expected.
Officers of coast guard anticipate that applications have just started. The proportion of applications so far received—8 1/2 per cent of the entire list, including the married men in that list—is regarded as comparing favorably with the enthusiasm manifested for aviation duty by any other branch of the public service to which the opportunity is presented. The Pacific coast has not yet been heard from. The three men assigned as students, as have been announced, are Third Lieut. Elmer Fowler Stone of the Onondaga and Second Lieut. of Engineers Charles E. Sudden of the Androscoggin, assigned to duty at the navy aviation school at Pensacola; and Second Lieut. of Engineers Norman B. Hall of the Onondaga, assigned to the Curtis School of Aviation at Newport News, Va., for experimentation work.

Their Applications on File.
The six other applicants are Second Lieut. W. A. Benham of the Onondaga, Second Lieut. William Williams of the Tallapoosa, Second Lieut. W. P. Wah-ar of the Seminole, Second Lieut. E. A. Coffin of the Tuscarora, Third Lieut. Robert Donohue of the Androscoggin, and Third Lieut. L. V. Kiehorn of the Tallapoosa.

The Onondaga is stationed at Norfolk, the Tallapoosa at Key West, the Seminole at Wilmington, N. C.; the Androscoggin at Halifax and the Tuscarora on the great lakes. This distribution of the vessels shows the wide interest taken everywhere in the coast guard.
